Quick bio on Dr. Charles Cooke

-Hildebran High school Class of 1955

-LR student 1955-1959 - Physics Major

-UNC Chapel Hill 1959-1964 PHD in Physics

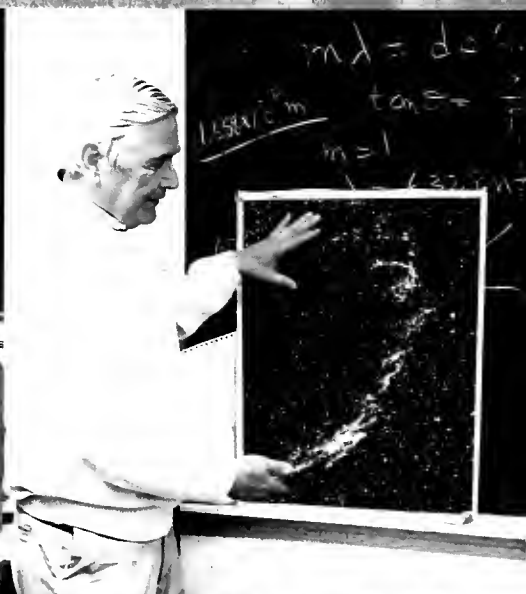

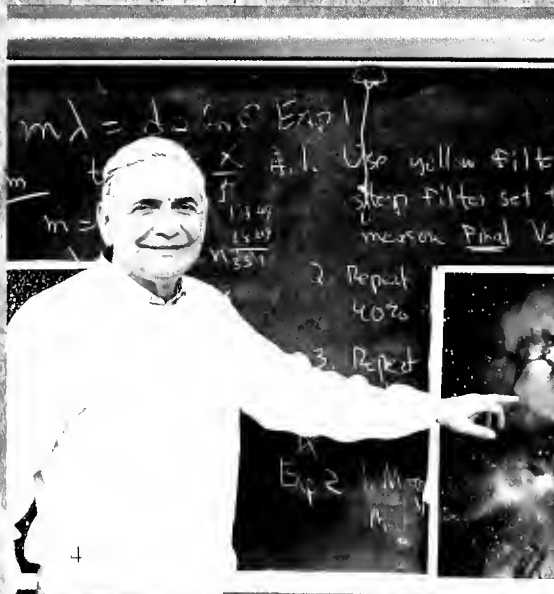

-The summer of 1964 he was invited by NASA to come work for them plotting the lunar orbits and lunar landings.

-Started at LR 1964 - He had come to visit previous professors at LR and they told him that Dr. Cromer wanted to see him. When Dr. Cooke went to see Dr. Cromer, he offered him a position.

- Started up the first radio station at LR - The station was named WLRC and housed in the student center above the receptionist area. Cooke wired the whole campus and only those on campus could hear the broadcasts.

- Brought the first computers to the college - He had the campus wired with fiber optics to support computers on campus.

- Took a group of students across country - Since he was responsible for the students and one had a tendency to sleep walk, he tied a rope to his foot and the other end to a while they were in the Grand Canyon.

COOKE

Honored 2010
HACA WA Dedicatee

By Steve Tuttle

The new chairman of the Burke County Board of Education comes to the job with more than memories of the classroom. He works in a classroom every day with students who often are the product of the school system he leads.

Dr. Charles Cooke was elevated to school board chairman this week, eight years after he was first elected to the board. But he has been teaching for 15 years and is praised by a colleague as "one of the best we have ... his classroom always sparkles."

Dr. Cooke is chairman of the physics department at Lenoir-Rhyne College, a distinguished post he had held 13 years.

Quite naturally his hobbies are electronics and making telescopes. "In the past year I have made 50 or 60 six-inch telescopes," Dr. Cooke said Tuesday. The recent solar eclipse prompted all the telescope-making by the latter-day Galileo. Last month he had to find time between school board business and his teaching load to keep up with a group of L-R students he had sent to Montana to observe the total eclipse.

Another hobby Dr. Cooke has wired into his Hildebran home is a ham radio station, and he rolls off his on-air call letters ... K4BDU ... as easily as he says his name. His busy schedule often keeps him away from the radio, but he recalls some exciting side band moments. "The most satisfaction (of ham radio) is helping provide opportunity for service men to talk to their families when they are in the Mediterranean or around the world."

Dr. Cooke graduated from L-R in 1959 and earned his doctoral degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1964.

He married the former Sandra Wilson and they now have three daughters. It is not unusual for one of the girls to be found playing quietly in his Menzes Science Building office, as happened Tuesday afternoon when The Independent stopped by for a picture-taking session.

Dr. Cooke is a former president of the Hildebran Jaycees and is a member of the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He has been published on several occasions in trade journals. But physics and science don't occupy all of Dr. Cooke's time. He says his favorite relaxation is bowling. His major interest in his scientific field, though, is something called "quantum gravitational field theory." They may mean that as school board chairman, he has his feet firmly on the ground.

SPRING 2009

It was a rainy, slightly dreary Spring - which erased the drought of the past couple of years. It was also a Spring of some fiscal anxiety for LR, as the national economic recession dating from September 2008 reached us, denting both endowment and alumni giving. There were considerable fears of a drop-off in enrollment - which happily did not materialize. LR's Class of 2013 was the largest ever.

One casualty of the fiscal cuts during April was Commencement, which to save money was moved into an unbearably hot & stuffy Shuford Gymnasium. On the other hand, the Class of 09's gift to LR was a beautifully-designed walking path and garden on the main Quad. As people bid goodbye to the class of 2009, preparations were made for the especially large student body of the next year.

Friday, April 3 was one of those intoxicatingly beautiful spring days, full of sunshine and almost sensuous breezes, that made everyone want to pour outside in droves. Fortunately, many did that night for the 2nd annual Relay for Life at Lenoir-Rhyne University!

The American Cancer Society's signature activity is a community gathering where anybody and everybody can convene to walk for cancer research. Teams spend 12 hours on the track, with one member required to be walking at all times.

Relay is also a venue for interactive education and information delivery. Participants are able to learn about the American Cancer Society, its programs, and ways to prevent cancer. Cancer survivors are the heart of the Relay For Life and the event serves to celebrate their accomplishments. There are many survivorship activities which include a reception and survivor dinner. The donations that are made through Relay For Life have had a helping hand in each of the survivors. Each of the donations are making a difference in helping people stay well, helping people get well, finding cures and fighting back.

No matter why each person took part in Relay, they knew that they were saving lives with every step they took.

Broyhill Leadership Institute's Europe Trip

Spring Break 2009

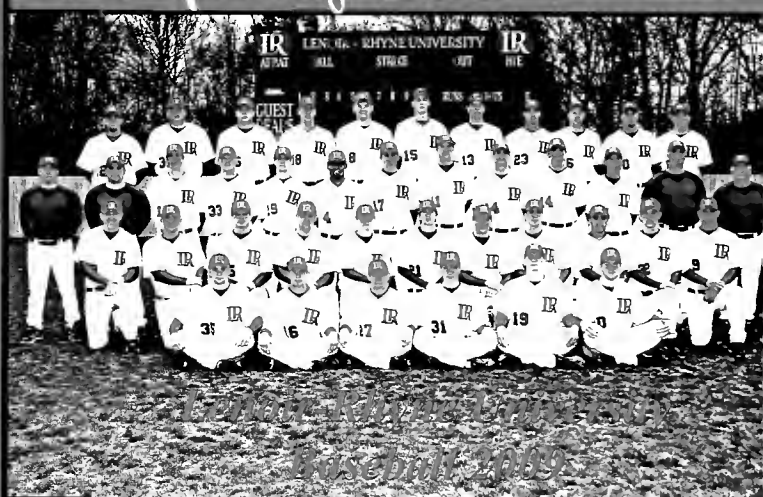

If places like Windsor Castle, Stonehenge, and the Eiffel Tower seem like only subjects in your geography book, then again if you're wanting an adventurous spring break, you should consider a trip out of the country. Professor William Maloney and his wife have been taking a group of students from the Broyhill Leadership Institute to London and Paris for a week of fun every year since the 1970s. The large amount of enjoyment experienced by the 2009 vacationers was a testament to the memories that will be cherished for years.

A Cappella Choir

with the Western Piedmont Symphony Orchestra

On April 18, 2009, the A Cappella Choir enjoyed a unique experience at First Baptist Church in Hickory. With director Dr. Paul Weber on sabbatical, they had the opportunity to perform under Maestro John Ross of the Western Piedmont Symphony Orchestra. The program included Latrobe's "Psalm 100," Ives' "Psalm 90," Parker's "Kentucky Psalms," and one of the world's most beloved pieces of choral literature, Gabriel Faure's "Requiem."

ON the VERGE

A Play by Eric Overmyer

In April 2009, three Victorian explorers came to life on stage of Belk Centrum. On the Verge, written by Eric Overmyer, tells the tale of three female explorers traveling through time, while they believe to be terra incognita. All the while, they are sharing stories of their explorations, trying to outdo one another. Whether it be onstage, or preparing for their role, all the characters delighted our senses and brought the play to life!

SOURCE SYMPOSIUM

Lenoir-Rhyne University proudly hosted its first-ever Symposium on Undergraduate Research And Creative Expression, which sought to showcase students' talents in every area. Students in all disciplines submitted posters and presentations to be showcased at this inaugural event. The keynote speaker was Dr. Mark L. Harvey, Professor of Psychology at UNC-Asheville. Guests had the opportunity to experience the amazing intellect and talent that abounds at this University on the Rise!

The 2009 Commencement was the most uncomfortable in recent memory: ancient, un-air-conditioned Shuford Gym was hot, muggy, and stifling, and the service seemed to go on forever. Everything to hand was used as a fan by everybody, and the recession felt like a bum-rush for the doors.

The Class of 2009 will be the last to have to endure this sort of thing, as plans for placing Commencement on a better & more comfortable footing were very quickly underway.

President Wayne Powell hands out diplomas.

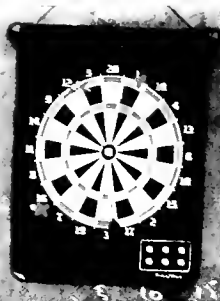

Jackie Williams addresses the Class of 2009

commencement 2009

Welcome to the beginning of this year's HACAWA! This is an exciting time for Lenoir-Rhyne University, as we are welcoming a freshman class with record-breaking numbers. Though the bad economy has taken a toll on many universities, our administrators were able to find ways to cut costs without infringing on the students' quality of life. This year, we have also undergone many changes, the first being the hiring of a new Dean of Students, Dr. Kay Fisher! Several things have been added, such as the Learning Commons, and many have been improved, like the cafeteria, but the downturn in the economy has made everyone so much more glad to be here, thus stimulating a new attitude of especially engaged learning. In these pages, you will see our facelift. --Kathryn Gaither, editor

Hands on Hickory

FALL 2009

A strangely warm Autumn, with a record crop of first-years and a revitalized campus life. Things turned unexpectedly, however, with the sudden demise of a much-loved Lenoir-Rhyne institution, Dr. Lowell Ashman, on October 7th. This knocked the campus into a daze for a time.

ORGANIZATION FAIR

RICHARD RODRIGUEZ

The Visiting Writers Series is a program that brings in relative speakers that are able to teach us students in various ways through their writings and speeches.

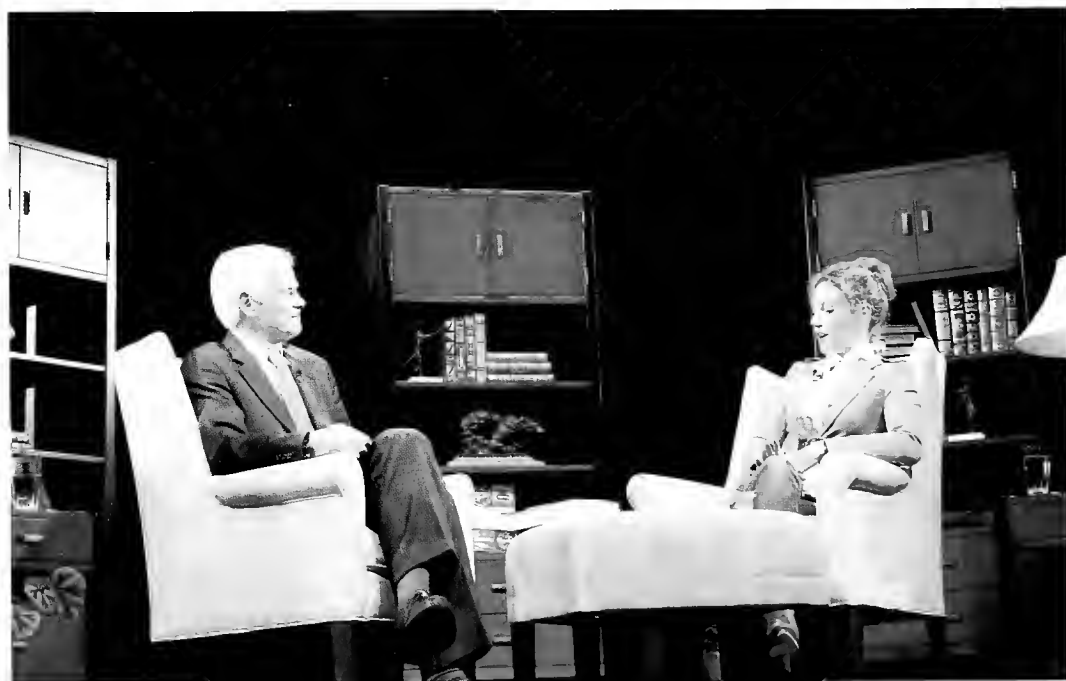

Many community members come to LR to hear the Visiting Writers Series because it's a chance for them to re-connect with the school and its students.

Mr. Rodriguez was the first of the Visiting Writers to visit LR this year. We look forward to the rest of the authors visits.

Visiting Writers Series

Marisha Pessl

Novelist Marisha Pessl made her literary debut with Special Topics in Calamity Physics (2006), which the New York Times named a Notable Book of the Year and an Editor's Choice, while Time magazine listed the work as one of Publishing's Next Page Turners. Pessl's novel was also a nominee for a Quill Award and the Borders Original Voices Award, 2006. Her long-awaited second novel, Night Film, is expected in 2010. At her visit to Lenoir-Rhyne, D.G. Martin interviewed Pessl live on stage for a future broadcast of UNC-TV's NC Bookwatch.

Tess Gallagher

Tess Gallagher is an American poet, author, essayist, and playwright. Her most notable works include many poetry collections. Her first, Instructions to the Double, was awarded the 1976 Elliston Book Award. In 1984, she published the collection Willingly, which consists of poems written to and about her third husband, author Raymond Carver, who died in 1988. Dear Ghosts (2006) is the continuation of this tribute, fourteen years later, and a poetry finalist for the 2007 Washington State Book Award.

Irish poet and playwright, Paula Meehan, introduced the world to her poetry with Return and No Blame (1984). Meehan's work also includes plays for both children and adults, like Mrs. Sweeney (1999) and Cell (2000). Her poetry has been listed among finalists for many Irish literary awards, and her distinguished honors include the Arts Council of Ireland Marten Toonder Prize and the Butler Award for Poetry. Among Meehan's most recent poetry publications are Dharmakaya (2000) and Music for Dogs (2008).

THE MANY FACES OF ISAAC SMITH

THE BOSS

A young & energetic Los Osos bunch betook the field of battle once again for the 5th Hickory Dickory Huck. Most of the team had never experieenced the quality and demands of tournament play, and so despite valiant battles on both Saturday and Sunday, our brave heroes finally relinquished the Coveted Cube trophy to a rather obnoxious side from Berry College. It was a building-block for future exploits, and no doubt triumphs.

Alex Corley says "yes, I have in fact just scored on your sorry ass"; 2. Chelsie contemplates her love of Ultimate; 3. Michael Malinger searches downfield; 4. Kelsey Ross lets it fly.

Jeannette Walls, author of The Glass Castle, came to campus on November 5 and 6. Her name is spelled with 2 N's, as her mother thought it more fancy and French. Answering questions based off of reception of her memoir, Jeannette Walls emphasized that, while her parents might have seemed neglectful, she thinks they provided her and her brother and sisters all they were able. She discussed how her life is currently, how her mother now lives with her, on the understanding she cares for the horses. She told an anecdote of starting college and being asked if she was anorexic, stating "People actually choose to starve themselves??" Be looking out for her new book, now on bookshelves, entitled Half-Broke Horses, telling her grandmother's story.

Paula Vogel

Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Paula Vogel visited Lenoir-Rhyne on November 12th and 13th, speaking after a Playmakers production of her play "How I learned to drive" (above), and again at a Convo on Friday morning, as part of Lenoir-Rhyne's Visiting Writers Series. Vogel is the Eugene O'Neill Professor and chair of the Department of Playwriting at the Yale School of Drama. She previously served as director of the MFA and Undergraduate Playwriting programs at Brown University, where she was the Adele Kellenberg Seaver Professor in Creative Writing. She also previously taught courses in the Theatre Arts and Women's Studies program at Cornell University.

She was first nationally recognized with her play "The Baltimore Waltz" (1992) which won the Obie Award for Best Play in 1992. "How I Learned To Drive" (1997) met with widespread acclaim, and a Pulitzer Prize. Her other notable works encompass two decades: "Desdemona. A Play About A Handkerchief" (1979); "The Oldest Profession" (1981); "And Baby Makes Seven" (1986); "Hot 'N' Throbbing" (1994); "The Mineola Twins" (1996). The recipient of many prestigious awards, including the Award for Literature from the American Academy of Arts and Letters (2004). Vogel also has an award named for her: the Paula Vogel Award in Playwriting given by the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival.

Halloween '09

The midnight hour was close at hand...but this didn't seem to deter enthusiastic partygoers gracing the campus on Saturday, October 31! Although it was a rainy night, spirits at LRU weren't dampened with the storm. In fact, the campus was alive as students rocked out at the Theta Xi party, glowed in the dark at the black light party, and flitted around campus, taking pictures in sinister locations. The best part of all was not only Halloween on a Saturday, it was also the end of Daylight Savings Time...which meant there were two 2:00 am's! Want to see how creative people got? Look for yourself...

Christmas at LR

December 5, 7, and 8, 2000

"Fear not," God instructed, "for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy." This Christmas, singers did just that as they ditched any fears about performing and produced an amazing concert for three performances at St. Andrews. The program, which portrayed this message of not being afraid, was a phenomenal success, with the church packed to capacity on all three nights. Not only did the A Cappella Choir perform, under the direction of Dr. Paul Weber, but the LR Community Handbell Ensemble (directed by Jo Carol Thomason) and the LR Brass Ensemble (directed by Dr. Christopher Nigrelli) also spread the Christmas cheer. However, festivities were somewhat dampened when the annual Tree Lighting Ceremony was cancelled due to heavy rain.

I Do, I Do

A Musical About Marriage

An exciting and unique event happened when the Lenox-Rhine music and theatre departments paired up for the first musical in a long time! Directed by Professor Mia Sali and Music Director Dr. Chris Nigrelli, the show starred Alyssa D. Lowe and Scott Curtis for two performances and Jeremy Ard and Mariel Mene for two performances. The musical follows the lives of Agnes and Michael from the day of their wedding until old age, with plenty of arguing and some marital bliss along the way. Musical accompaniment was provided by an orchestra made up entirely of Lenox-Rhine students.

Mitchell Gold

Thursday, January 28, CNN Special Correspondent Soledad O'Brien, producer of such series as "Black in America" and "Latino in America", came to LR to interview Mitchell Gold in F.E. Monroe, as part of a series under production, "Gay in America".

Mitchell Gold is co-founder of the furniture company Mitchell Gold + Bob Williams, a nationally recognized business that promotes tolerance and equality, and the creator of Faith in America, an organization dedicated to ending religion-based prejudice against the gay community. His 2008 publication Crisis confronts this issue through a collection of forty stories written by well-known and accomplished gay Americans and edited by Gold along with Windy Drucker.

Ashley Massey, President of the Gay-Straight Alliance at LR, introduced Mr. Gold, and Justin Williams, a Playmaker, read one of the chapters from the book.

Lyrics by Kimi and Kari Jauch feat. Shelly Fearer

(Shortayyy) All Gamers
All you LRU players
it's about to go down
we about to create a campus crisis
survivors are going crazy
Assassinate (x3)
all you gamers, playing games
time to assassinate
assassinate (x2)

Take a good hard look at my facebook page

I'm in a game suite - roomie take a look at me in a dark dark room, safe where i'll be that's my dorm room, peep hole i'm lookin out but they can't find me, cuz, im no where a bout

Take a picture dude
i'll be hidin soon
so why do you all keep starin'
up at that bathroom
I got my best spies
they tell me where to hide
maybe i'll suvive
Liar liar pants on fire!!

Now I'm going to class
I got to walk real fast
I can't get caught
I have just got to last
this ain't no video game
this is real as it gets my next door neighbor
could have a stick

i got to hide in all the safe zones
that's cafe, bathroom, bedroom, and classroom

Well i'm the best kept secret
i know all the LR hideaways
and i'm oh so quiet,
so i'm not a dead giveaway
KEEP QUIET, i'm hiding here!

Backstab, im on the run game player solo, i hide in bear's liar
take that, i'll poke you game player
Hush, y'all cause i might be your slayer

hey yo! if you could see me now i'm paranoid it's takin me down over runs my life somehow Murderer outside my door
so anything is possible!!

Oh yeah, i'd never thought i'd be on the run
don't want my life to be done
BFF, I can't trust you
This is enter-tain-ing
Believe me when i say
Man, I JUST GOT POKED WITH A STICK!

This February 14 was a delightful time for members of LR's campus! Since Valentine's Day fell on a Sunday, couples and friends had an entire weekend to celebrate! It got off to a beautiful start when a surprise snow began on Friday afternoon, which resulted in a light, hardly dangerous dusting. After that, Valentine's was the first in several weekends to have mild, sunny weather! Besides traditional dates, students enjoyed a wide range of activities, from the Salvation Army minister's dance to the Theta Xi party. The only people who suffered were the counseling students, who had class all weekend long, and thus missed most of the festivities.

LACROSSE CLUB

NCAA Lacrosse Comes to Lenoir-Rhyne

Lenoir-Rhyne University Director of Intercollegiate Athletics Neill McGeachy announced this year the hiring of Greg Paradine as the school's first-ever director of lacrosse. Paradine will coach both the men's and women's lacrosse teams, which will start competing in the 2010-11 academic year.

"I am honored and humbled to be the named the first director of lacrosse at Lenoir-Rhyne University," said Paradine. "Athletic Director Neill McGeachy, President Dr. Wayne Powell and I share the same vision for the lacrosse program at L-R: to strive for excellence in the classroom, integrity on the playing field and involvement in the community. The addition of both men's and women's teams at Lenoir-Rhyne is a huge boost for the game of lacrosse in the state of North Carolina."

"Coach (Paradine) represents all the parts we're looking for in this inaugural coaching position: skills as a coach, an evaluator, a recruiter and part P.T. Barnum."

Paradine comes to Lenoir-Rhyne after serving as an assistant lacrosse coach the past seven years at his alma mater, the University of North Carolina.

During his coaching career at UNC, Paradine oversaw many of the day-to-day operations of the Tar Heel Lacrosse Program in addition to serving as an offensive and a defensive coach.

Paradine, who graduated from North Carolina in December of 1993 with a bachelor's degree in geography, was a four-year letterwinner from 1990-93. He played on four Atlantic Coast Conference Championship Teams and four NCAA Tournament squads. In addition, Paradine was part of the 1991 NCAA National Championship squad, 1993 national finalists and 1990 and 1992 semifinalists.

Paradine was a first-team All-American in 1993 and an honorable mention All-American in 1992.

Before returning to North Carolina, Paradine served as head lacrosse coach at Chapel Hill High School from 1998 to 2002. He led the Tigers to three PAC-Six Conference Titles (2000-02) and was named the PAC-Six Coach Of The Year in 2001. The Tigers were the North Carolina High School Lacrosse Association runners-up in both 2001 and 2002. Paradine also coached three high school All-Americans at Chapel Hill.

The addition of the two lacrosse teams will bring the total number of sports at Lenoir-Rhyne to 19.

We are all very excited to see what will happen next year with the Lacrosse program and we welcome Coach Paradine in our Lenoir-Rhyne family! Make us proud Coach.

Each year, teachers select a group of sophomores who have shown both academic prowess and leadership skills for the Broyhill Leadership Institute. Directly following their acceptance, they embark on a retreat to Kure Beach, where they participate in leadership seminars, as well as fun activities like the annual trip to the NC Aquarium. Once in the program, students are eligible to go on the annual spring break Europe trip.

Catholic Campus Ministries

I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Creator of heaven and earth and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord; Who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died, and was buried, He descended into hell; the third day He arose again from the dead; He ascended into Heaven, sitteth at the right hand of God, the Father Almighty, from thence He shall come to judge the living and the dead. I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Holy Catholic Church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and life everlasting. Amen.

New Deaf Students

If you've been to any event at L, chances are, it included a translator who signed along to the speaker! Leno Rhyne is very proud of its deaf population; we attract many deaf students, and our deaf education program is outstanding. We are very fond of our deaf members of campus, who never let their challenge overcome them, often becoming distinguished leaders. Students are fascinated in class by the translators, who often get to know hearing students as well. We extend our open arms to welcome our new deaf students, and say hello again to returning members of our deaf population.

...Eating Club?

Cafeteria remodeling

Of course everyone has to eat!
It's a good thing that our

was a success!

Where's the single most frequented place on campus, where students flee for sustenance to maintain these activities? The "caf," of course! Everyone was pleased to see renovations in the fall of 2009, which included the much-anticipated booths! Now, it was possible to enjoy a "fine dining" experience at LR! Bon appetit, everyone!

A quick history of the
LR caf...

Back in the old days, they had Oakview Hall for girls, and Highland Hall for boys...both of which included their own dining halls! Y it's true...boys and girls were not allowed to socialize at meals! Luckily, things have evolved since then, and we don't have to slip each other notes!

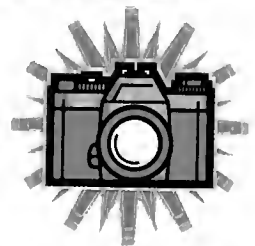

Communication Club

The LR Communication Club is chartered through the National Communication Association of Student Clubs and is open to all communication majors interested in pursuing activities and opportunities to learn more about the field of communication. Members have numerous opportunities such as workshops, field trips, and listening to speakers.

Salvation Army

Think you have to join the military to become a lieutenant? No way! This year, Lenoir-Rhyne was fortunate enough to host Lieutenant Nina Borum of the Salvation Army. While at LRU, she spread the word of Christ through Bible studies, retreats, and friendships she formed with students. In September, she even took a group of girls to Camp Walter Johnson for a weekend of fun and fellowship! Her work was a great asset to the Lenoir-Rhyne Community.

A Quick History Lesson...

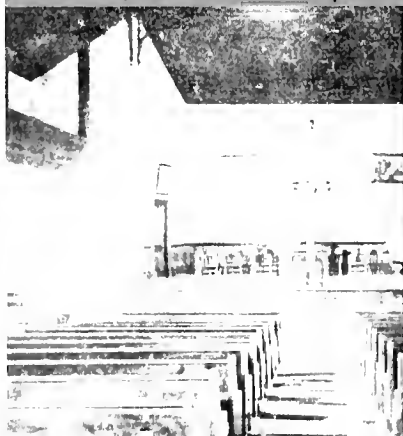

Highland Academy. This school, which opened its doors in 1886, was the precursor for Lenoir-Rhyne beginning in 1891. For years, this building was used for a grade school, college classroom building, and mens' dormitory until Highland Hall as built in 1907. At the time it was discontinued the floorboards were rotted and some of the walls had fallen.

Hickory lawyer W.W. Lenoir had left a large plot of land in his will for a Lutheran college, and it was decided that the nearby Highland Academy building was the best spot for Hickory. Robert A. Yoder, a Newton man who taught at Concordia College in Conover, was named the first president, despite his wife's objections. He then had to pay the whopping price of $240 to move his house, as well as several elm shade trees to Hickory.

Amid the bleak surroundings of the time was built majestic Old Main in 1893, which housed a chapel, auditorium, and library, as well as many offices, recitation rooms, and parlors. Even many years later, Margaret Deal remembers it being the social center of Hickory:

"There was the main building, and that was it. Old Main had an auditorium upstairs, and there was a balcony in Old Main, and I remember so often people sitting up there. And there used to be Shakespearean plays. There was nothing else in town like a theatre or like that, and it was the place to go to anything at all."

This chapel, which seated 1,000 people, gave birth in 1910 to St. Andrews Lutheran Church, which worshipped there for many years. The recitation room, pictured right, was used by the ever-popular literary societies. The school year was also different back then, with the 2nd term being longer than the first...giving rise to "short term" and "long term."

The night of Thursday,
January 6, 1927

January 6, 1927 was
a calm, quiet scene of serenity.
But sometime between midnight and 1:00 AM, the Main Building was up in flames. The fire trucks arrived immediately, but it took the firemen until 4:30 AM to get the flames under control. Though the fire is thought to have started in the library, any details of the incident are unknown. Classes still met on schedule the following day, albeit in different buildings, and within a week, the undestroyed part of Old Main was ready for temporary use. One can only imagine the majesty that the college lost in this magnificent building, quite arguably the most beautiful in Lenoir-Rhyne's history, that future generations never got to see.

LET DOX BE UNRESTRAINED FOR

Yes, Joe Bear was real! Unfortunately, some boys accidentally killed him while trying to take off his collar. He also escaped several times, and was used to play pranks on others.

finished in 1913, boasted great advances for its day. Once, however, a creepy event happened when a security guard saw a turn-of-the-century worker on the roof, and was going to get him when he realized there was no inside door.

Here stands the original St. Andrews Lutheran church, which stood where the circular LR sign is now. It was torn down in the 1950's.

Mortar Board members make plans at a meeting.

This is an exciting time, for Lenoir-Rhyne has just founded the Arktos chapter (which means "Bear!") of Mortar Board, a national senior honor society. To even be considered for admission, rising seniors must have a high GPA, and then apply for selection based on service and leadership in the school and community. Once in Mortar Board, members are expected to participate in fundraisers, as well as tutoring, for the national philanthropy "Reading is Leading." This is the first year that Mortar Board has been in existence, and those who have joined feel very honored!

Every year the students of LR are featured, but finally here is an opportunity for some of the faculty and staff to be highlighted in the #ACAWA. These are faculty and staff who do a lot of the behind the scenes work that goes on at Lenoir Rhyne University.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Katie Fisher

Job Title: Dean of Students

She serves as the chief student life officer on campus. Her job is to work with other LRU leaders to create a campus climate and culture in which students take ownership of their education and engage in active learning. She will listen to student concerns, use student input to make decisions, and speak honestly with students. These efforts all work to provide students with opportunities needed for a positive campus experience.

Emma Sellers

Job title: Area Coordinator/ Director of Multicultural

She is responsible for the overall functioning of the residence halls. This entails supervision of the Hall Directors and the Resident Assistants. In addition, she is responsible for housing assignments and rooming for all on campus students. As Director of Intercultural Programs, she serves as a liaison for our students of color. As part of this job, she serves as the advisor for 6 campus organizations.

Jenny Smith

Job Title: Director of the Career and Personal Development Center. Her primary role is to work with students to support them in their personal growth while attending LR. She counsels students on a wide variety of issues and is here to help and support them through whatever it may be they are experiencing in their lives. She also works with students on career related issues and plans events about mental health issues related to college students.

Becky Sharpe

Job title: Administrative Associate for Student Life. From data entries, supervising work study students, to even processing judicial paperwork she does it all to manage the office. However, she sees her main responsibility is working with students and helping them with whatever they need.

Michael Briggs

Job title: Graduate Assistant for Athletics. He does marketing, NCAA compliance as well as event management. However the majority of his time is setting up athletic events to make sure they run smoothly for all you LR Bear fans!

Katie Wohlman

Job Title: Career Counselor. She helps students find what gifts and talents they possess and how to apply those to a career and professional life after graduation. She meets with students about everything from choosing a major, to finding internships, job searching and getting into graduate school. She loves what she does because she gets to help students find fulfillment in their lives!

Debbie Punch

Job title: Director of Student Accounts. She is responsible for sending the billing statements to all students each semester. She applies financial aid to the student accounts and makes sure all charges and transactions are correct. She loves working with students and wants to help relieve as much stress as possible when dealing with their billing statement.

The LR Sports Information Department is the behind-the-scenes voice of the Bears. Sports Information Director John Karrs and Assistant Director Asa Moran have many duties. They maintain the athletic website, www.lrbears.com, and they manage home games by providing official statistics, public address, and audio. They take care of trials for 17 varsity sports at Lenoir-Rhyne and next year, when Men's Swimming and Men's and Women's Lacrosse begin competition, that number will increase to 20.

Laura Coker

Title: Records Specialist. Being a graduate from LR herself, she now works in the Registrar's office doing everything from data entries to processing documents. Recently she began working as a Designated School Official (DSO) with the office for International Education (OIE). She also is a campus adviser for Zeta Tau Alpha.

facelift...

...lifting our campus

The A Cappella Choir is Lenoir-Rhyne University's feature choral and touring ensemble. Open to all students by audition, about half of the members major in something other than music! Founded in 1935, Dr. Paul Weber is only its third director.

This season was a particularly exciting one! The choir kicked off the year with an evening prayer service at St. Andrew's Lutheran Church on October 4, and then left for a tour of Washington, D.C. that included a Reformation Service performance at the National Cathedral! After their usual Christmas at Lenoir-Rhyne program, they immediately geared up for their spring tour of Tennessee, Georgia, and South Carolina. After that, they hosted a choral festival and performed Mozart's requiem. By singing in the A Cappella Choir, students gain advanced musical skills, travel experiences, and cherished friendships.

Concert Band

The concert band is one of the major ways Lenior-Rhyne reaches out to the broader community. Percussionist, Colin Welch-McLoy (left), is one of the many community musicians who enrich the band program.

Dr. Dan Kiser (right) led Lenior-Rhyne's concert band in another exciting year. In their 2009 spring concert the band performed some demanding literature including contemporary pieces like Mark Camphouse's "A Movement for Rosa" as well as some classics by Sousa and Johann Strauss. Also in the spring, several top students had the opportunity to perform with the United States Navy Concert Band under the direction of Capt. George N. Thompson. In the fall, the band performed pieces which showcased the talents of some of our best soloists including Julia Byrd on piano, Andrew Seo (left) on clarinet, and Anna Mosteller on flute.

College Singers

College Singers 2009-2010. Girls: Marie Smith, Kathryn Gaither, Laura Jones, and Alyssa Lowe. Boys: Cody Jones, Scott Curtis, Kenneth Miller, and James Huskey.

The College Singers is Lenoir-Rhyne's most advanced vocal ensemble. Made up of leaders in the A Cappella Choir, they perform a wide variety of repertoire ranging from madrigals to classical to vocal jazz. The College Singers supplies a section on the A Cappella Choir's home concerts as well as on tour. This year they have performed at LRU Family Weekends and National Lutheran Youth Day, a Bath Eden Lutheran Church evening prayer service, and a high school chorus workshop. However, by far the hardest thing they were asked to do while also the most meaningful, was singing at the funeral of Dr. Lowell Ashman, whom many of them knew personally and loved well. The College Singers is directed by Dr. Paul Weber and accompanied by Jeana Neal Borman.

Judith Burbank's studio voice class is a small group comprised of music majors with an emphasis in vocal performance and other serious vocal students. Central to the class is learning about expression and movement; though singers practice techniques in lessons, it's very helpful to experience a setting where they're experimenting and receiving feedback from their peers.

While singers work the whole year on preparing songs for student recitals and juries, they perform as a group occasionally. On April 20, 2009, they presented a cabaret show, complete with costumes and dancing. This year, however, the major focus has been on the January 2010 performances of Amahl and the Night Visitors, a one-act opera by Gian Carlo Menotti. Through performing a wide variety of repertoire and collaborating with other group members, singers in studio voice truly leave well-prepared for the world of music.

The Lenoir-Rhyne University Brass Ensemble plays brass chamber music of a wide variety of styles, from Renaissance to modern compositions.

The LRBE is at times split into two groups, a quintet (the "Dominant Five") and a septet (the "Major-Minor Seven"). The LRBE accompanied the Lenoir-Rhyne A Cappella Choir on their fall 2009 tour to Washington, D.C. where they had the privilege of performing in the St. Matthew Cathedral and in the National Cathedral. The Brass Ensemble frequently performs for LR events, music department recitals, as well as local schools and churches.

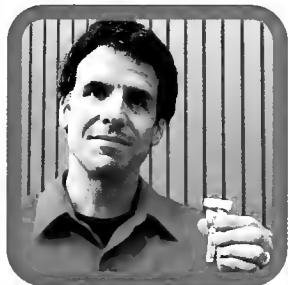

Some interesting things happened as they made their mark on Washington, D.C.

Low Brass Studio

The Lenoir-Rhyne University Low Brass Studio is the college's premier low brass ensemble. The studio is made up of music majors who are currently studying one of the low brass family of instruments and plays a wide variety of music including trombone (with tuba!) quartets and trios, as well as standard orchestral pieces. With the capable Dr. Christopher Charles Nigrelli at the helm, the Low Brass are often seen performing for recitals, Lenoir-Rhyne events, and local high schools.

Arlington National Cemetery

The A Cappella Choir, Brass Ensemble, and College Singers were invited by the Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Synod of the ELCA to perform at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. for the Lutheran Reformation Service. During this historic event, the Oromo Ethiopian congregation of D.C. was welcomed into the ELCA. Fifty-five students were able to experience the wonder of this superior worship space, as well as many others spaces, and will forever cherish wonderful memories.

THE BALTIMORE WALTZ

The first play of the year and what a surprise. The Baltimore Waltz is a play about processing grief and other emotions. The audience goes on a journey with the characters to go on a trip that never got to happen. Anne's brother is dying of AIDS and in order to cope with this loss she imagines the trip to Europe they always wanted to go on. This was an excellent play with a unique story to tell.

THE

WALTZ
BY
PAULA VOGEL

"Paula Vogel's The Baltimore Waltz was a beautiful drama about a relationship between a brother and sister. It confronted so many social issues that need to be discussed. I was extremely honored to have a role in Vogel's play."

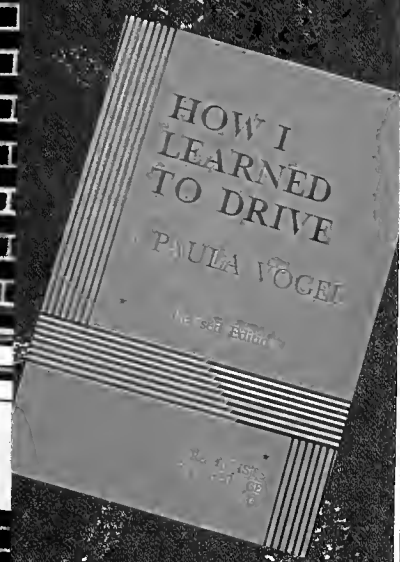

-Leah Staton

"It was a pleasure to be a part of such a personal show."
-Brendan Chaney

How I Learned To Drive

Above: Paula Vogel, playwright , with LR Playmakers.

How I Learned To Drive was the second play by Paula Vogel that Lenoir-Rhyne performed this year. The LR Playmakers did an excellent job with this production and had a great time doing it. The play provides an open dialogue that introduces a controversial topic. This was a difficult play for the actors, and it required them to expand their horizons and get out of their comfort zone. Paula Vogel also made an appearance and gave a speech after one of the shows. Paula Vogel's productions had a significant impact on Lenoir-Rhyne's campus. Students were incredibly floored by the Lenoir-Rhyne Playmakers and their performance. It was an event to remember.

Chapel Choir

Chapel Choir 2009-2010. Dr. Paul Weber, Morgan Lane, Josh Herman, Cody Jones, Andrew Golden, Kenneth Miller, Marlys Kiser, Sarah Gladden, Marie Smith, Kathryn Gaither, and Valerie Frank.

Open to all students, faculty, and staff without audition, the Chapel Choir sings for campus-wide chapel services Wednesday as well as for special services of the campus community. Sacred music students participate in the ensemble as a vital part of their program of study. The Chapel Choir sings a balanced cross-section of repertoire drawn from various traditions and styles. Modeled on a part-time volunteer choir, the ensemble allows students the opportunity to direct their peers and instrumentalists or to serve as cantors and soloists in the performance of accessible and appropriate music for worship. Singing in Chapel Choir improves sight-reading skills, builds community, and deepens one's faith as the choir serves the spiritual needs of the campus community.

Steel Drum Ensemble

The Steel Drum Ensemble was established in the Spring of 2000 and has quickly become a popular group in the community. This ensemble performs regularly both on and off campus and is open to all interested students. This fall, members worked on an exciting program that included 1940's favorite "Yellowbird," country song "When the Sun Goes Down," and a classic steel drum number, "Shake the Papaya Down."

You know you're an artist at LR if any of the following applies to you:

- 1. You skip academic classes every now and again, but you would never, ever dream of skipping a rehearsal.*
- 2. You've trudged through a foot of ice to get to the art building on one of those infamous days when LR has class in treacherous conditions.*
- 3. Your first real love started on choir tour.*
- 4. Sleep? Pshaw! You've gotten back from choir tour at 3:30 in the morning and were still expected to go to your 8:00 class.*
- 5. You've seen the Black Mountain College documentary 3 times.*
- 6. You've been to more organ recitals than athletic events at LR.*
- 7. You have a horror story of a host family who made you change cat litter at 12:30 am, sleep on a yoga mat, or had a child arrested during your stay at their house.*
- 8. You spend more time in PE Monroe at night than your bed.*
- 9. You want to slap people who think music, theatre, or art are easy.*
- 10. There are no late parties, clubbing, vacations, or getting trashed on weekends because you have a church job on Sunday.*
- 11. You go through phases where you consider quitting/changing your major, but then realize that you're doomed to love your craft. Then, you cheer up and procede like nothing's ever happened.*
- 12. Your non-theatre friends give you a vacant stare when you report that you rolled around in the grass or painted squiggly lines during class today.*
- 13. You've ever encountered a seemingly supernatural event while in the music building or auditorium at an hour when you should be asleep, but it's the only time you can practice.*
- 14. You may have the most important paper in the world due tomorrow, but you'd better be prepared for your lesson, too. In a last-minute effort to save yourself, you run to Teana's door, to find someone else has taken the time you'd signed up for.*
- 15. Despite all this, you love your art and would never dream of doing anything differently!*

News flash: the chokers, t-shirts, platform shoes we wore in middle school were worn at the corresponding time by college students. Why was this stuff cool? It's totally unglamorous.

Try feeling pretty in "trendy" white t-shirts and denim shorts, which make girls look more like kids at summer camp than attractive women.

2004.

Look through the Miss North Carolina program book, and you'll see that nearly every contestant has this exact hairstyle. Also, rounded necklines were really in.

2006

After the looseness of the early decade, followed by the mid-decade tightly-clad look, fashion finally started to reach a form-fitting ground. Long skirts were big, but then went out for a few seasons, and are now back in. Argyle sweaters, hoodies, slimming jeans, and miniskirts were back, trends that continue today.

2001. Just a year later, the late 90's juvenile style was somewhat challenged by the emergence of three-quarter-length sleeves.

Not much was cooler from 2004-06 than jean jackets, but they went out quickly.

This girl was the epitome of cool in the mid-'aughts." Unusual neckline, capri pants with a low waistline...pants were all about showing some skin at the waist. And of course, her short hair completes the look.

For 2007-09, look back at the past few yearbooks for reference!

Always Be A Student

By: Joanna Fuchs

Keep on learning,

Though your graduation is done,

Your whole life's an education

That was only just begun

Your diploma is the first big step,

For knowledge is the special key

To having what you want in life

And being who you want to be

If you'll always be a student,

You'll find the secrets to success

And travel on the golden road

To peace and happiness

Whoa! We here at Lenoir-Rhyne are way nicer to our freshmen than we used to be. Even through the 1950's, heavy hazing was still common. According to the 1909 HACAWA, one of the most popular "hymns" sung by upperclassmen was "O Freshmen, You Had Better Lie Low, Lie Low." Isn't it great how far we've come?

You juniors and sophs—pshaw!
At first of you we stood in awe;
but now—ah me! It is quite clear you're as mortal as the freshmen here.
(Yes seniors we still feel a little bit shy, but they will be different by and by.

Don't laugh at us if we are shy,
don't tease us when we fret or cry.
What did you do when you were new?
The selfsame thing that we now do.
All the generations that shall come will do the same as we have done.

Where'er the schools, where'er the places,
there'll be strange folks and strange faces.
In every school in the world,
there is a freshman boy and a freshman girl.

Dr. Lowell Ashman

Model UN, 1976: Carol Mohr, Walt Cleckley, Alice Hughey, Joanna James, Dr. Ashman, Andrew Weisner.

Dr. Lowell Ashman had an immense impact on Lenoir-Rhyne's campus. Whether a student had him for American Government or for a Political Science class, he made it his mission in life to inspire success and critical thinking in all his students. From his notorious world geography quiz to his grand singing entrances into a classroom, Dr. Ashman held a spot in everyone's heart. One thing that will be sorely missed is his smile, which he beamed to everyone he passed in the hall. Dr. Ashman, thank you for your inspiration and your caring personality. We will miss you!

--Laura Jones, '10

Dr. Ashman was one of two professors at Lenoir-Rhyne who had a huge impact on my undergraduate career, my graduate school choices, and ultimately my career path in government service. I remember Dr. Ashman as a fundamentally kind, patient teacher who always had a smile on his face and time for his students. During my four years at LR, I was lucky to participate with Dr. Ashman, Joanna James and some other LR friends in the National Model UN. Dr. Ashman drove us to New York City overnight, and we kept him awake by telling stupid jokes, singing goofy songs, and pelting him with small objects from the back seat whenever he began to get drowsy. We had an educational but above all fun time in New York, and I was privileged to get to know him better as a person. For me, that trip illustrates one of the enduring benefits of my LR education; not only did our teachers teach us, but they also helped us to develop as individuals. I will never forget the genuine interest and concern Dr. Ashman showed for all his students nor the lasting impact he has had on me as a person.

ghostly encounters

DID YOU KNOW THESE THINGS ABOUT YOUR CAMPUS?

"We were all in the D bedroom of the LLC with the door slightly cracked. Out of the corner of our eyes, we all four saw a figure walk across our common room. It didn't hit us until a minute later that nobody had a guest over! We got up and thoroughly investigated, but no one was in our room, and the door was locked!"

"The year after Highland Hall was torn down, we had a lot of creepy things happen in the LLC. Several times, locked doors opened, with the handle moving and everything. The ghost wouldn't let us hang up anything on one wall, because absolutely everything we tried would fall down...including a picture that we saw get violently knocked off! When we hadn't had any activity in a while, we remarked that the ghost must be gone, and immediately after, the blinds began shaking as if someone had smacked them. We theorized that since the Highland ghosts had been displaced, they'd chosen the nicest dorm on campus!"

"I was practicing very late at night in the music building, when I heard running and saw a little kid's head go by the door. Thinking this was strange, I scoured the whole building, but found no one. I will never go there that late again!"

A very common sight is a little boy, spotted by many around the library, usually crying. He runs around a corner, and then always disappears.

For many years, residents have witnessed a young man running down the hall in a white shirt, apparently about to jump out the window.

"I too was in a practice room late at night, and while I was vocalizing the lights in the hall began to turn off, one by one. The creepy part is that the lights only turn off in pairs of two, so this is impossible. I called and searched for someone, but no one was upstairs. Creeped out, I went downstairs, and heard someone playing the trumpet really well in the recital hall, but the door was locked. When I came back a few minutes later, the door opened easily, but as soon as I opened it, the trumpet playing stopped...and the room was pitch black. There are no words to describe the creepiness."

While the campus is abuzz with excitement over the new facelifts, there are some serious...and also scary...memories on campus who are much deeper. Now, the AAUW is excited to pay these members long-due respect in their very own page in the yearbook. These scary stories...which are unfortunately true.

For many years, students and faculty have reported strange lights moving around the auditorium. Once, a faculty member stayed overnight and noticed they emerged from the picture of Dr. Monroe. Upon investigation, the light over the picture was burned out...and once the lightbulb was replaced, the night lights stopped!

On the spring mornings, many people have seen a Victorian garden party under the pine tree on the quad donated by the class of 1916.

"My freshman year, I was hanging out with two other girls in Isenhour, but one didn't really interact with us. Later, I asked, 'Who was the girl in here that just sat on the bed and read the newspaper?' My friend just looked at me strangely and replied, 'There wasn't anyone else in here besides us.'"

It's very commonly accepted that Highland Hall was haunted. Security officers, students, and faculty members have often witnessed disappearing visions but the scariest part is that these ghosts were notoriously violent, throwing things, slamming doors, and making threats.

In 1976, a security guard turned off all the lights in the library, which are all on separate switches and must be extinguished one at a time. He locked the doors and had time to walk to the Cromer Center before turning around to see that all the lights were on! In the morning, an investigation found that every single light was on...even in closets.

Recipe of the Day: Honey-Baked Chicken

Ingredients: 1 teaspoon garlic powder; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper; 1/2 teaspoon herbes de provence; 4 to 6 bone-in-breasts, or 1 cut-up chicken; 2 tablespoons melted butter; 2 tablespoons honey; 1 egg yolk.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line baking pan with foil. Combine dry ingredients in a small bowl; rub mixture on both sides of chicken. Combine butter, honey, and egg yolk; baste tops of chicken pieces, saving about 1/3 of mixture for later. Bake for 40 minutes, or until golden. Turn chicken, and baste with remaining honey mixture. Bake an additional 15 minutes or so, to brown bottom side.

Your May 2010 Horoscope: by Katie Lu

ARIES (March 21-April 20):

Your ruling planet, Mars, is raised, so expect to be productive! Your thinking will peak, so exams will be easy!

TAURUS (April 21-May 21):

Kindness and creativity should come easily to you, and you will be spontaneous and playful, especially on Thursdays!

GEMINI (May 22-June 21):

Emotional decisions about money may happen, but you will definitely be rewarded for hard work. Keep your sense of humor, though!

CANCER (June 22-July 22):

It looks like May is going to be a fantastic month for you! Love and relationships are likely to be in full bloom for you!

LEO (July 23-August 23):

If the last few months have been a little overdramatic, you are going to get relief now! New problems will be more mundane, so you can focus on taking care of yourself!

VIRGO (August 24-September 22):

Many more people will come to respect you this month, especially if you show them how strong you are inside. The respect will make you more alluring and bring opportunities for fun with it.

LIBRA (September 23-October 23):

You've been weighing whether success or internal happiness are more important, but now it will come clear. You will also better develop your ability to stand up for yourself. Instead of viewing yourself in terms of how useful you are to other people, you will value your own resources.

SCORPIO (October 24-November 22):

Do you have anything on your mind? If you're struggling with internal battles, look at those around you. This month, a lot of people will be in your life who are dealing with the same things.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23-December 1):

This summer is looking great for you! Hard work from the past few years is going to pay off for you, and you will shine in the perfect summer job.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 20):

You will be feeling very philosophical this month, and will gain precious insights into your true soul. You will emerge more self-assured, with knowledge as to what makes you happiest.

AQUARIUS (January 21-February 18):

This month, you'll be able to think in a more intuitive, less logical fashion, which isn't always easy for you. You'll find out exactly which friends you cherish most, and do something nice for them to show that you notice how much they impact you.

PISCES (February 19-March 20):

Opportunities will present themselves over the summer that allow you to really focus on your mental and physical well-being. After this transformation, your peers will be drawn to you...including those in whom you are interested romantically.

Class of 2010

Way back when pic!

These two dapper gentlemen, Kenneth Miller and Bradley Setzer, have both done a large amount for the school. Thank goodness they have matured a lot over the last four years!

Lenoir-Rhyne College

LRC to LRU. By far the most important event the class of 2010 has witnessed was when we became a university in August 2008! We had the unique opportunity of being at both a college and university for two years.

Thank you, LR, for not making us do this anymore!

Online registration (finally!). Lenoir-Rhyne must have been the last school in the world to get online registration in the spring of our sophomore year (prompting the facebook group "LR is operating in the stone age"). We all missed classes and tests as we stood in a line for 3 or more hours, just to find out our classes were full. Some people even camped out the night before to have a better chance of getting their classes!

Just the beginning of the line

We all had it marked on our calendars: August 18, 2006. Move-in day. At times, we looked forward to it with anticipation, while less confident days left us worried beyond belief. Alas, on that fateful day, the newest group filled in to Morgan and Isenhour Halls and speedily began making contributions to the school. Over the next four years, we found friends, love, and passions that were so wonderful we never could have imagined them. In and out the years have rolled, at a speed beyond comprehension and now we are ready to graduate. Where is the next chapter taking us? We don't know, but we can look back on the past four years with appreciation and fondness. As the class that spent half their time at Lenoir-Rhyne College and half at Lenoir-Rhyne University, we have been here at a very exciting time! Now, let's take a look at it...

Highland Hall. After being condemned 3 times, the former dormitory built in 1907 was demolished after our freshman year. We knew it not as a dorm, but a place to hunt ghosts.

2008 staff. We have 3 times more now.

Christy and Laura sophomore year

The Renaissance, or resurrection of the HACAWA.

When we began college, none of the upperclassmen even knew that we had a yearbook. The last several had been of poor quality. With the 2006 book not even done. However, Dr. Paul Custer took over, and Kathryn Gayther joined the staff as a freshman. The next year, Christy Coates and Laura Jones also took leadership roles, and it became great.

When it was just a field...

Moretz Sports Complex. That giant grassy field became a state-of-the-art track complex after John and Marilyn Moretz's generous donation.

For a while, LLC residents had to wake up to construction at 7:00 every morning, but it was worth it when we started our junior year with this wonderful facility.

Kathryn Miles, who is to thank for all the recycling bins on Recycling on campus. Our freshman year, there was nowhere to recycle if we wanted to. However, Kathryn Miles changed that sophomore year with her campaign to make recycling accessible!

Wayne Powell Day. This diamond in the rough is student body president. Isaac Smith as a sophomore.

Whitney White in Fritz-Conrad

Fritz-Conrad Renovations. When our class finally became eligible to move out of the freshman dorms, everyone hoped to avoid dirty, moldy Fritz-Conrad, which came with a dehumidifier in every room. However, it was fully renovated in summer 2008!

Write-on-wall stall
Write while you pee... this is pretty cool. Just remember to write then wipe & then, please, wash your hands. Thanks Generations Gospel Choir exemplifies the best of this school through the spirited enthusiasm and leadership among members!

Virginia Tech massacre. In April of our freshman year, we learned the scary fact that college safety isn't always ensured.

NU Generations Gospel Choir. Now, we have a new kind of music! People in our class have been essential to its creation.

Zeta Phi Beta. It was a great day on May 5, 2009 when Zeta Phi Beta was officially recognized as a social sorority! Many people in our class have been leaders in this movement, including president Triana Collier.

Also: Google e-mail, after a sophomore with such unreliable e-mail that we probably went 3 months without it. Freshmen lived in the LLC our sophomore year. Laundry got expensive, while washers got smaller. We lost the fight against the 18-hour credit cap. Roland left the post office. Random stuff!

Fraternity houses changed. The Pi Kappa Phi house no longer stands, while the Theta Chi house was moved for the athletic field.

New athletic teams. Since we've been here, women's swimming, women's tennis and men's and women's lacrosse have started up.

From the Editor:

I can't believe I'm doing this; after three years of being your HACAWA editor, I am composing my last editor's page.

My freshman year, I knew I wanted to do yearbook, but when I asked around, most people said we didn't have one! However, I was in for a good surprise in my History 100 class when Dr. Custer announced that he had taken over the staff and was looking for volunteers! Near the end of the year, I was excited beyond belief to receive an e-mail from editor Amy Greensfelder simply titled "Invitation"...and the rest was history.

I've got to admit that I was a little scared about how I was going to put together a yearbook, with no returning members on the staff. That's when I turned to two of my friends, Christy Coates and Laura Jones, who signed on as business manager and literary editor. That first year was tough, as we were only about to find about 5 reliable people, but I had some of the best times of my life. We published the 100th HACAWA, so we did a theme based on the past. I can't describe how much fun I had scanning pictures from old yearbooks (while listening to old music, of course) and learning about the school's riveting history.

Dr. Custer said that the good book sell itself, and he was right. We sold way more books than any staff had before, and one of the happiest moments at LR was when I walked into the publications office the first week of school to a room full of people who wanted to join the yearbook staff! That year, I found so many good, reliable people that the staff tripled in size. Thankfully, nobody graduated, and most are back this year!

When I think back on how my yearbook journey has affected my LR career, it is astounding. It's really a great organization to join when you start college, because it thrusts you immediately into the forefront of what's happening. You have to step outside your comfort zone and talk to people from different organizations, as well as administrators. Being editor is a huge responsibility, as you have organizational challenges that the vast majority of people don't experience until they've been in the real world for a while. It's indescribable.

But the most important thing is that I have never dreaded going to a meeting. From the very beginning, the publications office has been a place to have fun and be productive with exciting, interesting friends. It always thrills me to see people eating in the caf together who met through yearbook, or witness someone who thought they had no talent putting out amazing pages. One expects athletic teams and musical groups to have a certain camaraderie, but I truly believe that very few college organizations achieve this level of cohesiveness...and I feel blessed to have been a part of it. I can only hope that the yearbook always stays like this, and that future generations will flip through our pages and understand. It's the end of an era, one that I have enjoyed thoroughly. And now, with no further adieu, let me thank those who have helped me every step of the way:

Dr. Custer: You've really shown me what an ideal advisor should do. So many organizations have all the work done for them by adults, but you've allowed us to plan things ourselves, even if it did occasionally mean making mistakes. Thanks for always believing in us and stepping in when we needed it.

Christy: Wow, we've made it through three yearbooks, every one successful and the "most fun" in a certain way! You have been amazing, and I never could have gotten started without you. There is no way we could have been this successful without a wonderful business manager and person like you!

Laura: The "third" senior, and second alto "three," we have been together through it all! I'm so glad that you indeed came back this year. You have been conscientious and thoughtful through it all, never letting us forget that in addition to writers, we are artists who have a responsibility to show how it truly is.

Kimi and Kari: My gosh! Nobody could find harder yearbook workers if they tried! You two have excelled at everything, from doing pages, taking pictures, and just accomplishing whatever it took to go above and beyond. I always know I can count on you to do things perfectly, and I'm sure you'll be great next year!

Chris and Justin: You have done so much, both with photography and pages. You also have shown tremendous leadership ability, and I'm sure that next year will be wonderful.

Shelly: Everybody reading this, please give Shelly Fearer a hand! She has done by far the most difficult pages in the yearbook, from the cover to Find Fisher to the dividers. And what's more, Shelly, you've done it with the best attitude any editor could ask for. There's no way I could thank you enough!

Andrew: Finally, Christy is leaving so you can be the BIC! Haha, seriously, I appreciate all your pages, but in addition, I appreciate your attendance record at meetings. If only I could rely on everyone to be as prompt and ever-present as you, we would have a perfect staff!

Chase: I must say, I was extremely impressed with all of your pages! You took on extra assignments and did them well at the last minute, which meant so much to me. I'm sure that you will be a leader on the staff next year, and I can't wait to see even more of your pages.

Mariys: How lucky was I that you just "felt in a yearbook mood" on the day of our November deadline, and I discovered your untapped yearbook talent! You have helped way more than you know.

Leslie, Randi, and Robby: I am so, so glad to have you guys back, and your willingness to help is very appealing, even if some of your tasks were a little strange, like Robby flagging down joggers...

Chris M. and Henry: You may think you didn't contribute a lot, but people who are experts in a couple areas who are devoted to the pages may be the best kind of staffers to have! You were always willing to do anything you could, even at the last minute. Your work ethic speaks volumes.

Victoria, Megan, Charlee, and Casey: You can rest assured, your contributions are really appreciated! Thanks for stepping up and joining the staff this year! It's people like you who are the future...
